One Cent Two Cents Old

A cent is a unit of measure for the ratio between two frequencies. An equally tempered semitone (the interval between two adjacent piano keys) spans 100 cents by definition. An octave—two notes that have a frequency ratio of 2:1—spans twelve semitones and therefore 1200 cents. Since a frequency raised by one cent is simply multiplied by this constant cent value, and 1200 cents doubles a ...

The Lincoln cent (sometimes called the Lincoln penny) is a one-cent coin that has been struck by the United States Mint since 1909. The obverse or heads side was designed by Victor David Brenner, as was the original reverse, depicting two stalks of wheat (thus "wheat pennies", struck 1909–1958). The coin has seen several reverse, or tails, designs and now bears one by Lyndall Bass depicting a ...

1864 was the first year during which the US two-cent coin, or two-cent piece, was produced. For collectors, this is significant primarily due to the fact that 1864 two-cent pieces are the first of these coins to have ever been produced. The idea of the two-cent coin was first thought of in the early 1800s by a Connecticut Senator.

United States mints replaced the flying eagles with Indian head cents in 1859. This coinage shows a facial profile wearing a headdress on the obverse with words "United States" in front of the face and the words "of America" behind the face. The reverse of this coinage shows the words "one cent" surrounded by a wreath with a shield at the top.
